

CANADIAN NAVAL REVIEW

A photograph of a ship's deck at night, viewed from the perspective of someone on the deck looking forward. The ship's superstructure is silhouetted against a dark sky. A bright light source, likely the sun or moon, is visible behind the ship's mast, creating a lens flare effect. The sky is filled with the vibrant green and blue lights of the aurora borealis. The ocean is visible in the distance, reflecting the light from the sky.

VOLUME 16, NUMBER 3 (2021)

Winner of the 2020 CNMT Essay Contest
Canada and the Fourth
Battle of the Atlantic

"We Will Not March at the Back": The Women's Royal
Canadian Naval Service

Chemical Weapons Disposal and the Scuttling of
LST 3521 in 1946

Ice Navigation and Arctic Security

Our Sponsors and Supporters

Canadian Naval Review (CNR) is a 'not-for-profit' publication depending for funding upon its subscription base, the generosity of a small number of corporate sponsors, and support from the Department of National Defence. In addition, CNR is helped in meeting its objectives through the support of several professional and charitable organizations. Without that corporate support CNR would not be able to maintain its content diversity and its high quality. Corporate and institutional support also makes it possible to put copies of CNR in the hands of Canadian political decision-makers. The help of all our supporters allows CNR to continue the extensive outreach program established to further public awareness of naval and maritime security and oceans issues in Canada.

(www.navalassoc.ca)

(www.canadasnavalmemorial.ca)

(www.navyleague.ca)

To receive more information about the corporate sponsorship plan or to find out more about supporting CNR in other ways, such as through subscription donations and bulk institutional subscriptions, please contact us at info@navalreview.ca or coord@navalreview.ca.

